

Integrating with DSSI is Easy

DSSI has the experience to make your transition painless, no matter what your system or specifications. A dedicated project manager will guide you through the process. We have years of experience and numerous tools and resources help integrate the system smoothly.

On average, it takes 60-90 days to integrate – your organization could be using DSSI to automate and save within two or three months! And as you want to add more and more suppliers, we have solutions to help you capture every penny of your spend, no matter if you use national, regional, local or community vendors.

Phase 0: Pre-Integration – You finalize your contract with DSSI. This contract determines many of the procedures and decisions of the integration process. DSSI provides advice and suggestions about how to form your project team for the smoothest integration possible. Vendors are selected for integration, and all parties agree on connection requirements and target dates.

Phase 1: Discovery & Info Gathering – DSSI reviews your current procurement procedures to determine how to best apply DSSI’s procurement solutions. Next, DSSI, you and your supply chain secure and verify the information necessary for configuration.

Phase 2: Construction – After determining the communities and vendors that will be included in the initial rollout, it is time to connect them and load the catalog. DSSI is well-versed in a variety of integration styles and can recommend the technical specifications that best meet your needs.

Phase 3: Validation – Validation of the site and/or connection is a critical quality control step to ensure that the capability fully supports your and the supplier’s business relationship.

Phase 4: Training – After the site and connections are completed, you can focus on training your employees to best use your DSSI procurement site. DSSI has collected numerous best practices and has a variety of training strategies to help your employees learn them.

Phase 5: Go-Live and Monitoring – Once the site is built, it’s time to save. Sites and connections typically go live on Monday night. Your employees can log on and start saving money with every purchase.
