Senior Housing Design Trends

We're excited to share the fourth edition of our annual Senior Living and Healthcare design trends, which have been curated by our award-winning team of senior housing designers, construction and technology professionals.

This year we will draw inspiration from nature with earthy colors and biophilic design elements. And, we're increasingly seeing innovative ways in which technology and design are integrating to support safety and staff efficiency.

1. One of the most notable trends is the use of nature-inspired colors that create a sense of harmony and connection with the natural world. The Direct Supply® Aptura® 2024 Color of the Year, Spring Lake, is a perfect example of this trend, as it captures the magic of a twilight sky with its soothing blue-grey hue. This versatile color can be used as an accent or a base, depending on the desired mood and style. Other nature-inspired colors include earth tones such as terra-cotta with the ruggedness of desert landscapes, forest greens that reflect lush woodlands, and coastal blues that bring the essence of the sea inside.

2. Art Deco-inspired decor is making a resurgence, blending the nostalgic charm of the 1920s and 1930s with contemporary flair. Characterized by geometric shapes, symmetrical patterns, metallic colors, and luxurious natural materials, Art Deco is a highly adaptable style that can suit various regional and cultural aesthetics by drawing inspiration from around the world. Add a touch of elegance and sophistication to any senior living space with Art Deco, whether it is used as a focal point or a subtle detail.

3. Another emerging trend transforming senior housing is the use of biophilic design, which is the practice of incorporating elements of nature into the built environment. Biophilic design can be applied to senior living spaces by using natural light, plants, water features, natural textures, and scenes of nature. It can also create a more inviting and stimulating environment for seniors, as well as reduce stress and anxiety.

4. Technology and AI are revolutionizing senior housing, optimizing safety, comfort, and efficiency. Smart home gadgets, wearable devices, and robotics adapt to seniors' needs, monitoring their health and enhancing their quality of life.

Advanced safety systems employing sensors and facial recognition provide a secure environment, especially for those with cognitive impairments.

5. Refreshing and renovating spaces will continue to be on trend. One impactful change you can make is to invest in updated seating in your community to enhance marketability, especially in communal areas like lobbies and dining rooms. We have a selection of new and trending furniture to help create comfortable, functional and aesthetically pleasing environments to maximize marketability while minimizing impact to your budget.

6. Cohort and intergenerational living concepts, in addition to community-centered programming, are reshaping senior housing, fostering community among diverse groups of seniors and promoting interaction across generations. This inclusivity, coupled with the mentioned design trends, positions senior housing projects attractively in a market poised for a surge of senior residents.

With the expected influx of seniors in the coming years, these trends and colors can help make you an attractive player in the market, now and into the future. We hope these trends serve as inspiration for your upcoming design projects, and we look forward to helping you bring these concepts to life.

ACTIVE ADULT LIFESTYLE, TIMELESS DESIGN OUTCOMES:

Gracewin Living of Baxter's Journey with Direct Supply® Aptura®

Senior living communities have changed.

Senior living communities are evolving, and Gracewin Living of Baxter, Minnesota, is at the forefront of this transformation. In collaboration with Direct Supply® Aptura®, Gracewin Living of Baxter has successfully redefined active adult living spaces with a focus on modern design and vibrant aesthetics in this new construction project.

Gracewin Living of Baxter, a 55+ community, partnered with Aptura® to focus on autonomy and sustainability, catering to active adults' needs. Gone are the days of heavy drapes, community rooms that look like a time capsule of the 1980s, and muted colors. Active adult residents prefer modern, cohesive living spaces that suit their independent lifestyles. Aptura® designers incorporated a fresh, modern take on that ethos to appeal to a younger demographic.

Nature-Inspired Designs

Gracewin Living of Baxter draws inspiration from its stunning natural surroundings. The Aptura® design team made sure to incorporate earthy colors, including blues, golds, greens, and coppery hues, reminiscent of water and natural landscapes that surround Gracewin. Unique lighting, wood elements, and stone accents work together to create a crisp, modern, and inviting atmosphere. Each common area within the community offers a distinct ambiance, feels like its own destination.

Design Features for an Active Adult Community

Each area within Gracewin Living of Baxter maintains its own character while focusing on a cohesive design theme. The Aptura® team, ensuring client involvement in every aspect of the vibrant senior community design, created physical design boards for each unit style and managed the installation of artwork, furnishings, fixtures, and equipment (FF&E). Their thoughtful choices not only achieved the design vision but also:
